The blockchain technology has been developing much faster than what some experts predicted and 2018 or 2019 may see many applications that can benefit end users in their daily lives and work, according to Mr. Lei Chen, CEO of Xunlei Limited (Nasdaq: XNET), who recently spoke at the China International Big Data Expo in Guizhou Province, China.

“The era of Blockchain 3.0 has come. Xunlei’s ThunderChain makes it possible to create a blockchain-based shared computing model that involves over 1.5 million of families and end users,” said Mr. Lei Chen, “meanwhile, there are many startups and enterprises are now developing large-scale applications on ThunderChain.”
